

CAP Leader Responds to Globe and Mail article from August 8, 2007

Political extremists hurt economic debate

Dear Sirs, Mesdames:

I am Connie Fogal, Leader of the Canadian Action Party. I write in reply to the article by Neil Reynolds. I expect your respectable paper will have the courtesy to publish my response to his ridiculous labeling of the Canadian Action Party as right wing and extremist, and to publish as an article not subject to the limitations of space in a letter to the editor.

First though, let me commend Mr Reynolds for his accurate quotes from an article of mine which sets out the "hostile takeover" of the executive arm of government by the Canadian Council of Chief Executives and the US based Council on Foreign Relations. At least, in this backhanded way, Canadian mainstream media is finally giving Canadians some information about the lethal injection dripping into the veins of our country.

Thinking Canadians have been agonizing about your paper's failure to profile the process currently transforming three sovereign countries into one integrated undemocratic Fortress America, and destroying the constitutional rights and protections of the citizens of those nations-Canada, USA, and Mexico.

I draw the attention of you, and Mr. Reynolds, and your readers to the statement by David Rockefeller (founder of the Trilateral Commission), in an address to a meeting of The Trilateral Commission, in June, 1991. (Which is only one source legitimizing the Canadian Action Party dissent).

"We are grateful to The Washington Post, The New York Times, Time Magazine and other great publications whose directors have attended our meetings and respected their promises of discretion for almost forty years. It would have been impossible for us to develop our plan for the world if we had been subject to the bright lights of publicity during those years. But, the world is now much more sophisticated and prepared to march towards a world government. The supranational sovereignty of an intellectual elite and world bankers is surely preferable to the national auto determination practiced in past centuries."

Hopefully, your honourable paper is now distancing itself from that complicit media which abandoned its duty to report, expose, analyze, critique and fully inform.

I remind you also of the farewell address to the nation by President Dwight D. Eisenhower, January 17, 1961, who gave a stern and necessary warning to the American people against the growing and dangerous power of the military -industrial complex.

"In the councils of government, we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military -industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists and will persist. We must never let the weight of this combination endanger our liberties or democratic processes. We should take nothing for granted. Only an alert and knowledgeable citizenry can compel the proper meshing of the huge industrial and military machinery of defense with our peaceful methods and goals, so that security and liberty may prosper together. "

I trust that The Globe and Mail will live up to its past honourable role of asserting true media leadership to ensure the existence of an "alert and knowledgeable" Canadian citizenry. I trust you will put writers to work to report on what is really happening to our country

And finally, I remind you of the words of Gandhi when confronting people with truth, "First they ignore you, then they laugh at you, then they fight you, then you win."

Sincerely, Constance (Connie) Fogal, Leader,CAP/PAC
